“Serving and Protecting with Aloha”

Kukui Nut Insignia

On the cover is the gold, metallic rank insignia worn on the shoulders of majors, captains, and lieutenants of the Honolulu Police Department (HPD).

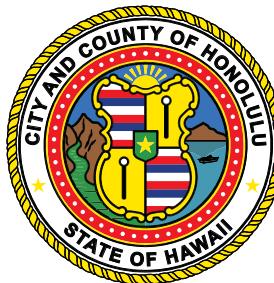

Majors, captains, and lieutenants of the HPD wear a unique rank insignia that is distinguished from standard military representations and not displayed by any other law enforcement agency. At a glance, each metallic, gold cluster gives the impression of another ancient symbol of high rank and status: the kukui nut. This kukui nut rank insignia is referenced as far back in the department's history as 1932.

Colored in a rich, royal gold, the kukui nut insignia is embossed with crossed pu'ulo'u or kapu sticks, which were an emblem of protection in the Kingdom of Hawaii. The austere symbol of authority is offset by an adornment of delicate fern fronds or palapalai, an ideal image of our islands' tropical landscape.

Message From the Mayor

I am pleased to present the Honolulu Police Department's 2017 Annual Report and to thank the department for its dedicated service to the people of O'ahu. This annual report details the activities and accomplishments of "Honolulu's Finest" and provides the public with an appreciation of the structure, functions and responsibilities of the department.

Honolulu is one of the safest cities in our nation due to the outstanding men and women of the Honolulu Police Department, both those in uniform and civilian employees, who perform their duties with professionalism and dedication. They protect lives and property 24 hours a day, fight crime, ensure homeland security, and provide excellent prevention and education programs while upholding the ideals of treating everyone with integrity, respect and fairness.

On November 1, 2017, Susan Ballard was sworn in as Hawai'i's first female and the Honolulu Police Department's 11th chief. I am confident that the department will rise to meet any challenge and continue to provide excellent service in the year ahead under Chief Ballard.

On behalf of the people of the City and County of Honolulu, I salute the sworn and civilian employees of the Honolulu Police Department for their devoted service to residents and visitors.

Honolulu Police Commission

The Honolulu Police Commission is made up of seven members who are appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by the City Council. All members serve staggered terms of five years. They volunteer their services and do not receive any compensation.

A chair and vice chair are elected from within its membership every year. The commission chair for 2017 was Mr. Max J. Sword. Ms. Cha Thompson served as vice chair.

The commission has the following mandated responsibilities:

- Appoints and may remove the Chief of Police;
- Evaluates the performance of the Chief of Police at least annually;

- Reviews rules and regulations for the administration of the Honolulu Police Department;
- Reviews the annual budget prepared by the Chief of Police and may make recommendations thereon to the Mayor;
- Compares the actual achievements of the police department with the goals and objectives in the five-year plan; and
- Receives, considers, and investigates charges brought by the public against the conduct of the department or any of its members and submits a written report of its findings to the Chief of Police.

Message From the Chief of Police

Aloha,

2017 will be remembered as a year of change at the Honolulu Police Department with its highest leadership positions in a transitional state for much of the year. Toward the end of the year, however, the clouds of uncertainty began lifting, and employees were eager for a fresh start for the department. With cautious optimism, both officers and civilian employees waited to see what a new administration would bring.

As chief, I am committed to providing consistent, quality police services to the people of Oahu. Working as a team, we will rebuild the public trust, reestablish partnerships with other government agencies and the community, and recruit capable and talented employees. Our officers will treat all individuals fairly and respectfully and be held accountable for their actions. As a department, we will continue to move forward in key areas, notably domestic violence, sexual assault kit analyses, and body-worn cameras. Also, we will transform those areas that need improvement by reorganizing and redeploying personnel and resources. Above all, we will do the right things for the right reasons in all areas of service to the public.

I am honored to be the eleventh chief of the finest police department in the nation, and I have every confidence in our employees to achieve the highest of expectations.

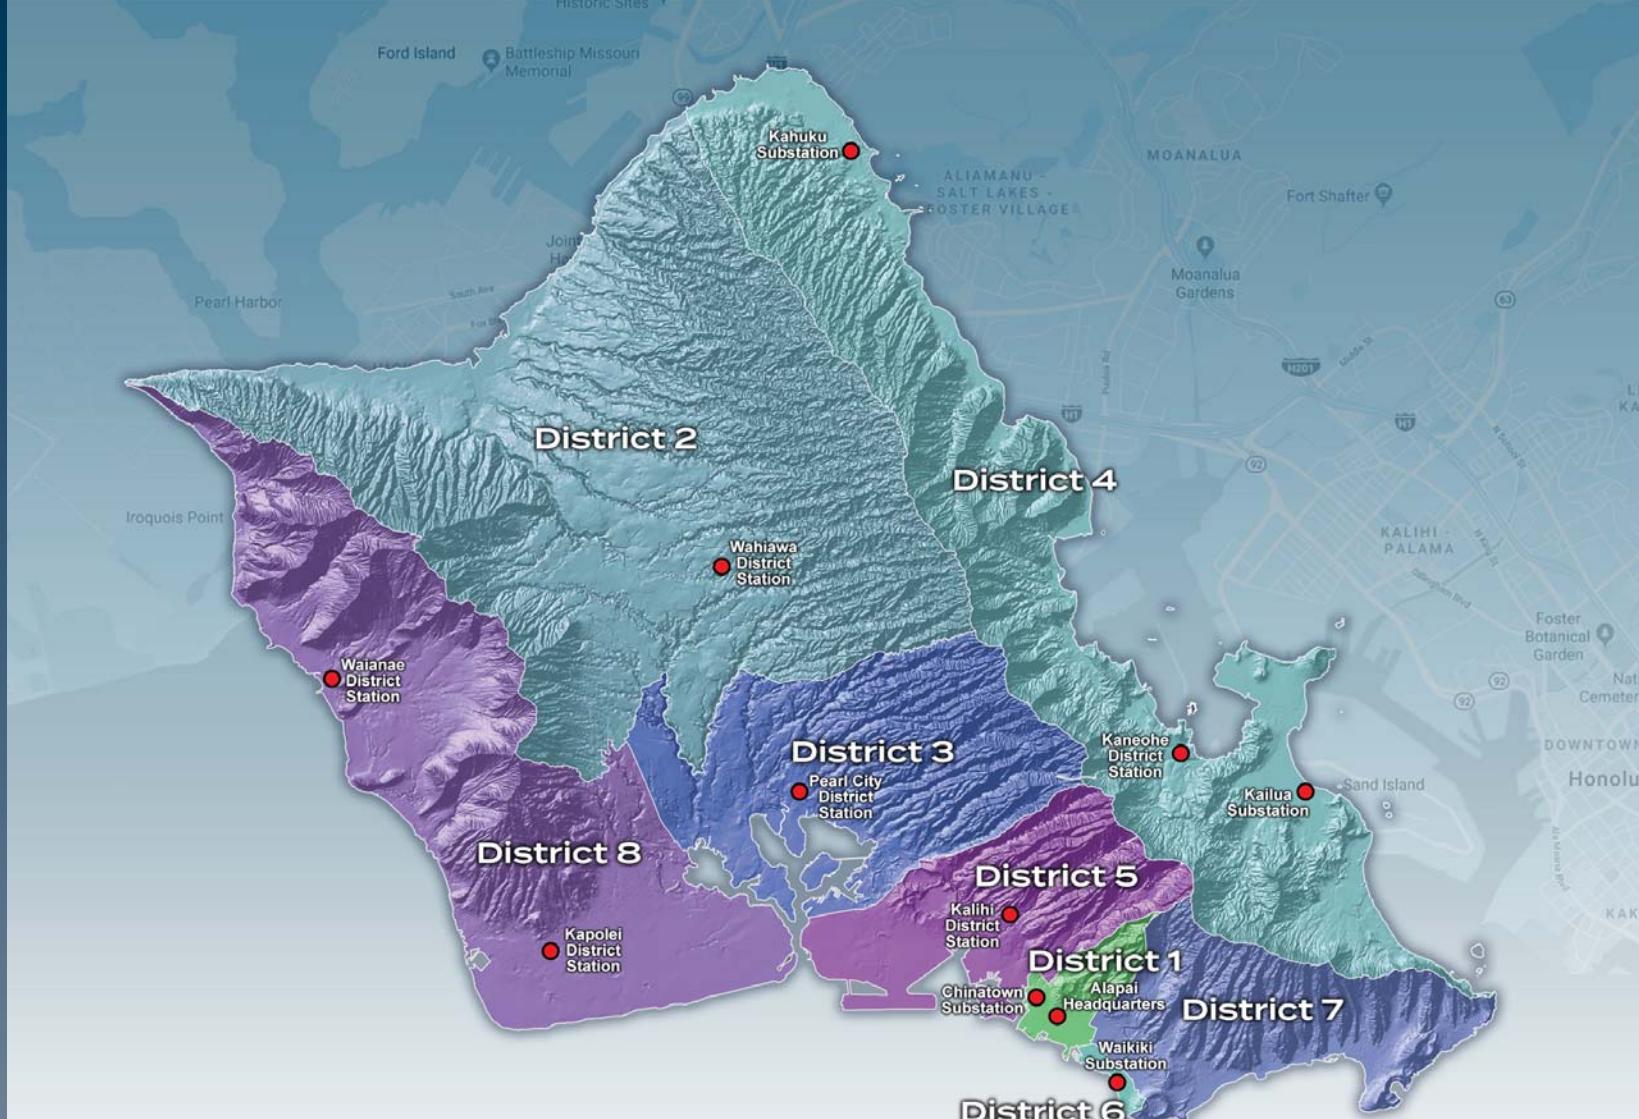

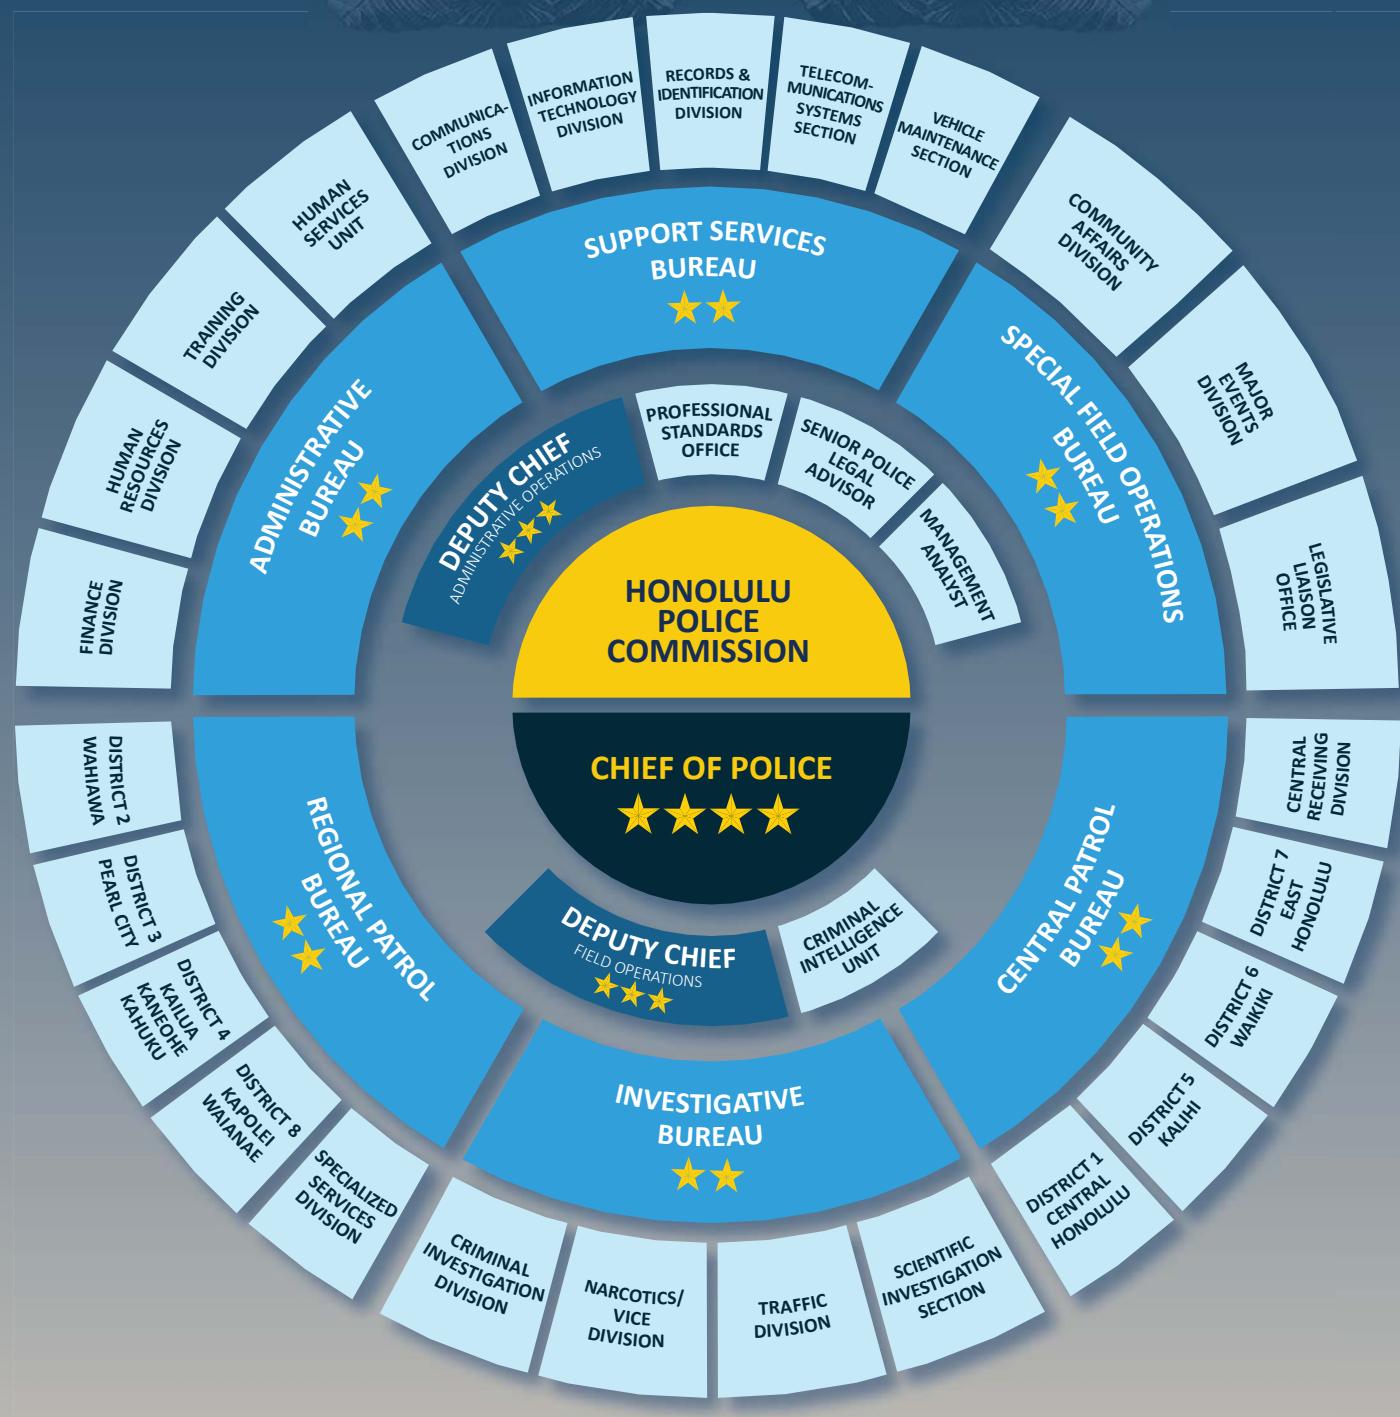

Susan Ballard
Chief of Police

HONOLULU POLICE ADMINISTRATION

Departmental Organization

Powers, Duties, and Functions

The Honolulu Police Department serves as the primary law enforcement agency for the entire island of Oahu.

The Chief of Police directs the operation and administration of the department and is responsible for the following:

- preservation of the public peace;
- protection of the rights of persons and property;
- prevention of crime;
- detection and arrest of offenders against the law;
- enforcement and prevention of violations of state laws and city ordinances; and
- service of processes and notices in civil and criminal proceedings.

The department's jurisdiction is the City and County of Honolulu. It includes the entire island, which has a circumference of about 137 miles and an area of some 596 square miles. The estimated resident population is about 999,600, which includes military personnel but not tourists.

For police operations, the island is divided into eight patrol districts; each district is subdivided into sectors and beats.

The department's headquarters is at 801 South Beretania Street in downtown Honolulu. District stations are found in Kalihi, Kaneohe, Kapolei, Pearl City, Wahiawa, and Waianae.

Leadership Served With Aloha and Southern Charm

On November 1, 2017, Major Susan Ballard was sworn in as the 11th Chief of Police of the Honolulu Police Department (HPD). She is also Hawaii's first female police chief and was described by a Honolulu Police Commissioner in the selection committee as someone with "grit and determination wrapped up in folksy southern charm." Chief Ballard joined the HPD in 1985 and has worked in a wide range of field and administrative assignments. As a commander, she has led the Kaneohe (District 4) and Kalihi (District 5) patrol districts and the Finance, Training, and Central Receiving Divisions. Born in Virginia and raised in North Carolina, she has a Master of Arts degree in health and physical education from Tennessee Technological University.

In December, Captains John D. McCarthy and Jonathon Grems were appointed to the rank of deputy chief. Deputy Chief McCarthy has 41 years of service and previously was the Executive Officer for District 6 (Waikiki) and the Criminal Investigation Division. Deputy Chief Grems, with 24 years of service, most recently served as the captain of the Human Resources and Finance Divisions.

Recruitment and Exams of Honolulu Police Department (HPD) Officers

The Recruitment and Exams Unit updated the recruitment website, www.joinhonolulupd.org, in late 2016. Changes to the website allowed prospective applicants to request information from the browser page. Since the update, the site has had over 107,753 hits and 1,095 "Ask the Recruiter" submissions. Additionally, the Recruitment and Exams Unit continues to attend job fairs and utilize social media outlets such as Facebook, LinkedIn, Instagram, and Twitter. The recruitment Facebook page has 2,632 followers and has been an excellent tool to promote the work of the HPD's officers and their contributions to the community.

In 2017, the Human Resources Division (HRD) Career Center staff processed 1,024 Metropolitan Police Recruit applicants, of which 97 were selected for three recruit classes. The HRD also processed 551 Police Radio Dispatcher (PRD) applicants which resulted in 35 individuals entering PRD training. Through continuous recruitment and the use of a performance-based entrance exam, the HRD was able to hire 22 candidates for the PRD 48th class, which is the largest class in HPD history.

The Training Division provides the best possible training that will prepare police recruits to become effective patrol officers. In 2017, three recruit classes

(the 184th, 185th, and 186th) completed training, which resulted in the addition of 66 new police recruits. After graduation, every recruit is paired with a Field Training Officer in a patrol division. Each police recruit's performance is evaluated daily to ensure that the goal of developing as an effective patrol officer is met. In some instances, the Field Training and Evaluation Program (FTEP) provides remedial training to those recruits who are in need of improvement. Of the 66 police recruits who graduated from the academy in 2017, 61 have completed or nearly completed their FTEP.

To ensure that incumbent officers remain capable of providing excellent police service, they all receive 27 hours of training through the Annual Recall Training (ART) program. Officers receive a variety of classroom and functional skills training that include use of force, control and arrest tactics, domestic violence updates, encounters with the mentally ill, firearms, and defensive driving. This year, 1,976 officers completed their ART. In addition, all HPD employees are required to complete online training courses that cover topics to include bloodborne pathogens, sexual harassment, and bias-biased profiling.

Crime Investigation Building Renovation

The contents of the Crime Investigation Building were severely damaged by a flood in 2008 and remained in disrepair until efforts to restore it began in March 2017. The goal of the restoration project was to renovate and refurbish each of the seven scenario rooms into venues capable of supporting realistic scenario-based training. After several months of work, the rooms were fully restored and are currently an integral part of departmental training. In addition to the restoration, the building was renamed the "Colburn Crime Investigation Building" in memory of Captain Neville Colburn who passed away on the academy grounds in 2015 while serving as the executive officer of the Training Division.

H.E.L.P.

The Health, Efficiency, Long-Term, Partnerships (H.E.L.P.) Honolulu began in May 2017. It is a pilot program committed to facilitating resources through partnerships and unified strategies that focus on providing improved services to Honolulu's at-risk community. Organizations involved in H.E.L.P. Honolulu include the Community Health Outreach Work to Prevent HIV/AIDS (CHOW Project), ALEA Bridge, Aloha United Way, the Institute for Human Services, City and County of Honolulu, and State of Hawaii Office of the Governor. Many individuals of Honolulu's at-risk community experience a multitude of social issues that may include drug abuse, mental health, medical health, and homelessness.

H.E.L.P. Honolulu's Goals:

- Reduce instances of arrest or initiation of mental health evaluation by intervening with at-risk individuals before extreme circumstances exist.
- Reduce the residentially challenged population by placing them into appropriate housing options.
- Train new and existing officers on accurate referral strategies that are delivered in a manner that builds trust between the at-risk community and the Honolulu Police Department (HPD).
- Improve information sharing between various service providers in order to reduce redundancy, so that more of the at-risk individuals may be assisted at any point in time.

This past year, the HPD interacted with 62 male and 40 female at-risk/homeless individuals. Six were placed into housing through the assistance of H.E.L.P. Honolulu. We expect these numbers to grow as H.E.L.P. Honolulu begins to expand into more districts.

Sexual Assault Kit Testing

In 2017, the Scientific Investigation Section (SIS) embarked on an unprecedented undertaking to address the estimated 1,375 untested sexual assault evidence collection kits in police custody. For decades, medical evidence has been collected in sexual assault cases for the purpose of DNA testing. Historically, this evidence was tested at the request of the investigator or prosecutor. In recent years, however, a national groundswell led by victim and survivor advocates shifted the focus toward the testing of all sexual assault kits.

On July 5, 2016, the Hawaii State Legislature enacted House Bill No. 1907, HD2, SD2, CD1 (Act 207), titled Relating to Sexual Assault, requiring the DNA testing of all untested sexual assault kits in the custody of county police departments. In response, the SIS stepped up its efforts to expand the laboratory's capacity by contracting personnel and outsourcing testing services. The section's Forensic Biology Unit trained five new staff members to address an ongoing personnel shortage as well as to process the DNA samples of convicted offenders. A grant-funded contract executed in April 2017 with Sorenson Genomics and the Marshall University Research Corporation addressed the Act 207 requirement to initiate the DNA evidence analyses and technical reviews of all eligible sexual assault kits in Honolulu Police Department's custody. By December 2017, all of the 974 eligible sexual assault evidence kits had been shipped to Sorenson Genomics. Analyses and review of those kits are expected to be completed in June 2018.

Specialized Services Division (SSD) Bomb Squad Unit

On May 19, 2017, the SSD Bomb Squad received a request from the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for assistance at the Daniel K. Inouye International Airport. An inbound, American Airlines flight from Los Angeles reported an attempted cockpit breach and a possible explosive device. Upon landing, the plane was directed to a safe location where the suspect was taken into federal custody and passengers were removed from the plane. After the plane was swept several times, the device (a computer laptop) was extricated and X-rayed by SSD bomb technicians. It was cleared and taken into custody by the FBI.

Working together at the scene were personnel from the Honolulu Police Department, FBI, Department of Public Safety, Transportation Security Administration, Airport Security, American Airlines Security, and Air Force Ordnance Disposal.

In 2017, the SSD Bomb Squad responded to a total 54 bomb call-outs and conducted 71 bomb sweeps. Also, the SSD enhanced public relations through 3 SWAT, 50 canine, 19 bomb, and 4 helicopter demonstrations for schools and community organizations.

Body-Worn Cameras (BWCs)

BWCs are an emerging technology in law enforcement across the country. With the potential to elevate police accountability and transparency with the public, such equipment can protect the department and citizens of Oahu. Having progressed through much of the planning for BWCs, the department reached its latest milestone in 2017 with the successful completion of a BWC pilot program.

The purpose of the pilot program was to test and evaluate all aspects of a BWC system to include the equipment, infrastructure, support, policy, training, and internal and external workflows. Pilot program participants consisted of all officers assigned to District 1's Third Watch and a select number of officers in the Training and Traffic Divisions.

About 4,700 videos were generated over the pilot program's four-month period. A special unit named the Video Management Unit was established to manage both internal and external requests for video. This unit was responsible for all user and video management (e.g., set-up, distribution, technical support, and collection of all BWCs), system checks, maintenance, and reports.

Based on the successful pilot program, the Honolulu Police Department is confidently moving toward the deployment of a departmentwide BWC program. Currently, the department is working with the Department of Budget and Fiscal Services' specialist to procure a comprehensive BWC system.

911 Calls

In 2017, the Communications Division received 1,022,818 calls for service, which 882,091 (86 percent) were for police services. The division's operators routed 33,234 calls to the Honolulu Fire Department, 99,926 calls to the Emergency Medical Services Division, 545 calls to the Ocean Safety and Life Guard Services, and 7,022 calls for miscellaneous services. Miscellaneous service calls include, but are not limited to, calls for the Crisis Center, Poison Control, Regional Dispatch Center, and the neighbor island Public Safety Answering Points.

Central Receiving Division

The Central Receiving Division is responsible for processing and detaining arrestees safely and securely. In 2017, divisional personnel processed a total of 14,645 adult and juvenile arrestees, provided 39,665 meals, and transported 8,786 arrestees to the court detention facility. On average, about 1,500 individuals were held overnight each month for a total of 18,643 detainees in 2017.

Community

Coffee With a Cop

Coffee with a Cop events provide a venue where police officers and community members can come together to discuss community concerns over a cup of coffee. These events aim to connect members of law enforcement and the community one cup at a time.

The Community Policing Teams from various elements partnered with establishments within the community, such as McDonald's, Starbucks, and Big City Diner, to conduct Coffee with a Cop events in 2017. The venues hosting these events provided the coffee and warmly welcomed the officers and citizens into their establishments.

National Night Out

District 5's Community Policing Team (CPT) officers partnered with the Target Salt Lake store to organize a National Night Out event on August 1, 2017. The event recognized the Neighborhood Security Watch, Business Security Watch, and Citizen's Patrol groups and thanked them for being the "eyes and ears" for the department.

Such a large event owes its success to the many hands that lent support to District 5, namely the time and energy of all eight districts' CPTs, and the Honolulu Police Department's (HPD) reserve officers and Law Enforcement Explorers. Throughout the all-day event, the participating groups waved safety-cautions on Salt Lake Boulevard, had a nice dinner together, and enjoyed the performances by local entertainers.

The event also had interactive and display booths provided by the Humane Society of Hawaii, U.S. District Attorney's Office, Target Salt Lake, Pali Momi Medical Center, State Sheriff's K-9 Division, HPD's Keiki ID, HPD's Major Events, Community Affairs, and Specialized Services Divisions.

Police Activities League (PAL) Sports and Boxing Showcase

The Honolulu Police Department (HPD) has been offering social events and athletic activities for youths with the Police Activities League (PAL) since 1948. Available activities offered by the PAL include cooking, flag football, baseball, basketball, volleyball, wrestling, rugby, boxing, karate, and judo. In 2017, approximately 23,000 children participated in PAL-sponsored activities.

One such event was the annual Boxing Showcase held in September 2017. Forty-six boxers from approximately 17 boxing clubs from across the state competed in the showcase. This showcase provided a great atmosphere for the players and their families.

Approximately 1,500 individuals attended the showcase. An event of this size would not be possible without the support of many volunteers and other HPD units, such as the district Community Policing Teams and the Law Enforcement Explorers Program.

Events like this Boxing Showcase provide an opportunity for the department to form partnerships with youth athletic clubs in our community. It also allows the PAL to teach our youths valuable social skills for life through teamwork, fair play, and sportsmanship. For more details on these programs and registration, please visit <http://www.honolulupd.org/community/index.php?page=pal>

Aloha No Na Kupuna

2017 marked the 10th year that officers of District 1 greeted senior citizens at the annual Aloha No Na Kupuna senior safety conference at the Koolau Ballrooms. The conference began with a performance by Sing Yung Dragon and Lion Dance Association, LLC, opening remarks by former District U.S. Attorney Florence Nakakuni, and a keynote speech by retired Chief Justice Ronald Moon.

The approximately 100 kupuna who attended the conference received health, safety, and financial fraud education from service providers from The Queen's Medical Center, Walgreens, New York Life, American Red Cross, Kalani High School's Future Health Professional Club, Department of Public Safety's Narcotics Enforcement Division, Hawaii Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs, Walk Wise Hawaii, and the Tai Chi for Health Institute.

Guests were also treated to entertainment by Kekanewai and an impromptu performance by Frank DeLima rounded out the day's festivities creating an educational, engaging, and successful event for all.

Project CLEAN

This past year, departmental Community Policing Teams (CPTs) within their respective districts partnered with community members to help clean up and beautify areas around the island. The CPTs from Districts 2, 3, 7, and 8 got involved with their communities by painting over graffiti and disposing of garbage and litter.

On March 11, 2017, District 2's CPT partnered with Hawaii HomeStreet Bank, First Hawaii Title, Locations Hawaii, and Oahu Transit Services, Inc., for a Mililani Graffiti Paint Out event. Employees from these companies volunteered and assisted CPT officers in painting over vandalized properties located at the Mililani Transit Center and H-2 Freeway; a combined area of approximately 1,000 square feet. This collaborative effort enhanced the Mililani community by beautifying the area and restoring a sense of pride in our 'aina.

Meanwhile, the CPT in District 3 partnered with schools, community groups, and government agencies for two Project Community Lokahi to Enrich our Aina Now (CLEAN) events. Areas targeted this year included the Pearl Harbor Bike Path, Rainbow Park, Kapakahi Stream, and the Pupuole Mini-Park.

As a result of numerous reports of graffiti appearing within District 7, the district's CPT conducted a graffiti cleanup in the Punahoa area on May 16, 2017. Following the cleanup, the CPT partnered with other details within the Honolulu Police Department (HPD) to conduct a graffiti operation which led to the arrest of two suspects. In 2017, District 7's CPT conducted five graffiti cleanup events which concluded with painting out more than 5,000 square feet of graffiti.

In District 8, on July 25, 2017, CPT officers and kupuna from the Nanaikeola Senior Apartments helped remove graffiti from a nearby park wall. The community and the HPD will continue to work together to keep our island clean.

Brighter Futures Through Tasty Treats and Active Feet

District 8's Culinary Arts and Health and Fitness Programs were created as Weed and Seed initiatives. Weed and Seed is a community-based strategy sponsored by the U.S. Department of Justice to "weed" out crime and "seed" neighborhoods with social programs. This approach teaches our youths valuable life lessons through participation in fun and healthy activities while deterring them from joining gangs, committing crimes, and otherwise posing problems for the community. This program also serves to empower youths with skill-building and strengthening the relationships they have with law enforcement.

Culinary Arts

The Culinary Arts Program offers youths with cooking and home economic skills to build self-confidence and guide them to become productive members of society. This program also builds strong bonds among government agencies, community groups, and private businesses. Through the partnership of District 8's Community Policing Team and Weed and Seed officers, Roy's Ko Olina, and Weed and Seed Hawaii, the program has been able to mentor participants on topics such as Keys to Success, juvenile laws, drug awareness, bullying, and occupational interest.

Health and Fitness

The Health and Fitness Program is a pilot program, resulting from the District 8's Community Policing Team (CPT) collaboration with the Ewa Beach Boys and Girls Club. Hoping to teach the importance of maintaining a healthy lifestyle and benefits of physical exercise, this test project reached out to youths in the Leeward communities who could best benefit from training, guidance, and mentoring.

Officers in this program trained children in proper exercise techniques without the use of elaborate exercise machines. About 30 sixth to ninth graders from the Ewa area participated in this program, many of whom are from socioeconomically challenged families without the means to participate in team sports after school. The participants in this program committed to two sessions per week for six weeks under the instruction of two CPT officers. The program received $1,200 in funding from the U.S. Department of Justice's Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) to pay for equipment and aids. District 8 has reapplied for grant funding and will continue to run this program as long as the JAG is available.

The Season of Giving Back

Halloween With a Hero

Many children in Honolulu go without experiencing the Halloween celebration. Halloween with a Hero provided less-privileged youths staying at the Institute for Human Services with an evening of fun and trick or treating at the Ala Moana Shopping Center. Community heroes who volunteered their time included police officers, fire department personnel, emergency medical services personnel, military personnel, and community volunteers.

The children had a positive, fun-filled evening with their community heroes as they walked together through the Ala Moana Shopping Center and received goodies from various selected stores throughout the mall. Halloween with a Hero was a meaningful way to build positive relationships within our community, one child at a time.

Christmas Celebration

The Honolulu Police Department (HPD) celebrates the holiday season every year through various community events, such as its annual Shop with a Cop, Jefferson Elementary School Christmas Dinner, Target's Heroes and Helpers event, and the Honolulu City Lights parade. Officers throughout the island spread Christmas cheer in 2017 by spending quality time through shopping and interacting with children in their communities.

At the Shop with a Cop events, uniformed police officers got into the spirit with selected and deserving children as they shopped and socialized together during the holiday season. This unique shopping experience fosters positive interaction between law enforcement and the community and is made possible through donations from Walmart, Kahala Mall, McDonald's, and officers within the HPD.

District 6 partnered with Jefferson Elementary School, the Sheraton Waikiki hotel, and various community businesses and members to organize the 22nd Annual Jefferson Elementary School Christmas Dinner. This event was held at the Sheraton Waikiki hotel which sponsored the venue and dinner for the children and their families. Community members generously donated gifts to the children who came to the Christmas dinner.

District 5's Community Policing Team coordinated with the Target Salt Lake store to sponsor Christmas shopping for 100 children from Adult Friends for Youth, Queen Liliuokalani Children's Foundation, and five elementary schools in Kalihi. Target provided $50 per child. Additional funds were donated by participating heroes from different federal, state, city, and nonprofit agencies, such as the HPD, Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, Helping Individuals Succeed, Department of Defense, and the Honolulu Fire Department. McDonald's, Starbucks, Meadow Gold, C&S Wholesale Grocers, Aloha Gas, and the Hawaii Law Enforcement Federal Credit Union also donated their time and services at this event. This event was a huge success and allowed the HPD to give back to the community and build better relationships with the children as well as other organizations.

Joining in on the season's festivities, the Finance Division took the lead in decorating the department's entry for the city's indoor tree display with a Zootopia-themed Christmas tree. Commanding officers also got into the spirit as they joined the Honolulu City Lights parade on December 2, 2017, with the chief and deputy chiefs leading the way and passing out holiday candy to wish all the best for the holidays.

Remembering Chief Francis Keala

On January 7, 2017, retired Honolulu Police Chief Francis Keala passed away at his home at the age of 86. Chief Keala led the Honolulu Police Department (HPD) from 1969 to 1983, a tumultuous time for the nation and in policing.

When Keala was promoted from being the captain of the Finance Division to Chief of Police in 1969, he was, in fact, the first person with a college education to become chief of the HPD. He was faced with increasing disrespect for law and order and an expanding drug abuse problem in the public. Many of the challenges confronting police were largely due to the changing concept of police roles in society at that time. Where police had once been enforcers, now it was necessary for officers to be aware of the deeper sociological problems involved in dealing with people. To Chief Keala, it was evident that police officers needed a broader understanding of their roles and that the training and retraining of all officers were necessary to meet this goal.

Chief Keala retired in 1983 after serving as chief for 14 years. He was a true leader, a devoted family man, and an inspiration to all who met him. He will be missed by many, both in and outside of the HPD.

Officers responded to a seven-alarm fire call at the Marco Polo, a 36-story building. As the District 7 Third Watch officers arrived, they were aware that the Second Watch officers were evacuating residents inside the burning building. As fatigue started to set in with the officers from the upper floors, Third Watch officers proceeded up the stairwell, worked together, and continued to evacuate residents. The officers assisted many elderly and non-ambulatory individuals bringing them to safety.

Corporal Marvin S. Parengit
Corporal Barbara A. Delaforce

Officers responded to a parking-type complaint. As the situation escalated, officers used force necessary to stop the threat to prevent serious injury to officers and immediate residents.

Officer Jennifer R. Bugarin

Officer Bugarin disregarded her own safety and took control of a suicidal male, under the influence of alcohol, and saved a human life.

Gold Medal of Valor

Officer Keola K. Kopa

Being one of the first officers on-scene of a seven-alarm fire call at the Marco Polo, a 36-story building, he related the severity of the fire to the Honolulu Police Department Dispatch and responding units. Without regard for his own safety, he entered the burning building numerous times and evacuated many residents.

Bronze Medal of Valor

Officer John A. Alarcon

While off duty, Officer Alarcon saved a distraught female from jumping in front of a busy freeway entrance.

Officer Anthony L. F. Kalahui

At great risk to his own safety, Officer Kalahui grabbed a distraught male and secured him on the overpass, saving his life as well as safeguarding the lives of the motorists driving on the Moanalua Freeway.

Bronze Medal of Merit

Sergeant Deric J. Valoroso

Sergeant Valoroso was alerted to a call of two armed suspects who barricaded themselves in an apartment. The suspects mentioned that Sergeant Valoroso mentored them in the past and had a rapport with him. Sergeant Valoroso was able to help convince both suspects to exit the apartment without further incident.

Officer Grant T. Mochizuki

Officer Mochizuki responded to a call of a distraught male wanting to cause harm to himself. Officer Mochizuki gave his undivided attention and convinced him to sit on the ledge of the building, allowing other officers to detain the male and take him to the hospital.

Statistics 2017

Violent and property crimes are categorized into seven serious offenses called index crimes, which are used to define trends over time and make comparisons across the nation. The statistics for index crimes are prepared and submitted to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime Reporting Program on a regular basis. Index crimes consist of four types of violent crimes (murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault) and three types of property crimes (burglary, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft). Definitions for the crimes are on page 56.

In 2017, a new case reporting system for the Honolulu Police Department was implemented and used to prepare the following 2017 tabular count data:

- All index and non-index crime data except Murder;
- Weapon type used in Murder, Robbery, and Aggravated Assault;
- Adult and Juvenile Arrests; and
- District and Beat.

Murder and murder-related counts on pages 36 to 39 were from the Honolulu Police Department's Homicide Detail. Personnel strength and traffic fatality numbers were provided by the Human Resources and Traffic Divisions, respectively. Resident population data was estimated from the U.S. Census Bureau.

Index crime definitions from the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime Reporting Program Summary Reporting System Manual 1.0 are listed below:

Index crime	Definition
Murder	The willful (nonnegligent) killing of one human being by another.
Rape	Penetration, no matter how slight, of the vagina or anus with any body part or object, or oral penetration by a sex organ of another person, without the consent of the victim.
Robbery	The taking or attempted taking of anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear.
Aggravated Assault	An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault usually is accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm.
Burglary	The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or a theft.
Larceny-Theft	The unlawful taking, carrying, leading, or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another.
Motor Vehicle Theft	The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle.
